Where to Go?

Below Zero Temperatures Hit; Students Shiver, Slip and Slide

By JUDITH ZAESKE

The weather outside is delightful . . . for penguins, polar bears, eskimos, dog sled teams, Santa Claus's North Pole helpers, and staying inside. The blue skies and bright sunshine yesterday were only a front that Old Man Winter put out to mask the freezing wind, below zero temperatures, and icy sidewalks. But he didn't fool very many people.

Parkas, ear muffs, scarfs, mittens and boots make students look like walking ads for something that might be called "I wore 12 sweaters, three pair of gloves, four pair of leotards, and survived."

The only things not frozen are the unquotable words uttered when someone hurrying to class slips on one of the many icy walks.

Missoula's -21 was relatively mild compared to the rest of the state. Butte had -41, while Bozeman recorded -43. Adding Drummond's -47, the state looks like a poor place for refrigerator salesmen.

There aren't many places to go to escape the January cold spell, either. As far south as Monroe La., an inch of snow has fallen. At Jackson, Miss. snowstorms closed, roads and schools.

It looks as if we'll just have to put up with pushing cars and turning up thermostats. The Home Ec. club is getting in the swing of things; it's serving chili at its noon luncheon today.

Perhaps all we need is an optimistic attitude toward snow, wind, cold and ice. There is skating, skiing and tobogganing, and Snow Weekend should find lots of good sculptures.

The snow is good to combat drought for ranches and farms, too.

Wonder what happened to that robin someone saw Sunday?

Teenage Marriage to Be Subject of Radio Broadcast

Teenage marriages and its consequences will be the subject of a half-hour radio broadcast tonight at 6:45 over radio station KXLL, according to Ron Richards, radio studies production supervisor.

On the program, teenagers will tell about their marriages, give advice to others who wish to marry while in high school, and discuss their outlook for the future, Richards said.

The program was written and directed by Don Kinney, senior in radio-television and is narrated by Richards.

Material for the program was gathered with the assistance of the Domestic Relations committee, headed by the Dean of the law school, Robert E. Sullivan, Richards said.

The program was broadcast during the Christmas vacation by all Missoula stations, but it is now being repeated for the benefit of students and faculty at MSU, program officials said.

U Concert Hall Features Trio

A piano, violin and cello trio will be featured on tonight's broadcast of the University Concert Hall to be heard at 9:15 on KGVO.

The trio, made up of members of the MSU music faculty, will be heard in a half hour broadcast from the music recital hall. Members of the trio are Eugene Andrie, violin; Miss Florence Reynolds, cello, and Rudolph Wendt, piano.

The Concert Hall is a regular weekly program of Montana University Radio. In addition to the weekly live broadcast carried by KGVO, the program is broadcast to 14 other Montana and Idaho radio stations. The program is now in its fourth consecutive year.

Television Used in Class Study As a Device for Observation

Television has become an integral part of a class, the elementary school child, offered by the School of Education, according to Dean Linus J. Carleton.

Every Wednesday students enrolled in this class meet in the Television Center and observe via television the elementary pupils in first and fifth grade alternately of the Roosevelt School in Missoula.

George H. Millis, Associate Professor of Education, teaches the class which meets for discussion and lecture four times a week and watches television once a week.

Mr. Millis said he was pleased with the first telecast which was Friday instead of Wednesday because Wednesday was the first day of classes this quarter. The picture and sound were good. The first graders seemed unaware they were being watched.

In the past, Mr. Millis said, students have had to go to the classrooms to observe the children. This, he said, caused several problems. The growing number of education students became too large for observation in the Missoula schools. Formerly students saw different situations, different teachers and different pupils. As a result they lacked a common reference for discussion, Mr. Millis said.

Two cameras are employed, one takes a picture of the entire classroom, the second is movable and takes closeups of the children. Mr. Millis said he is able to talk to the control operator, Robert H. Sherpenseel, University Radio-TV technician, and tell him to have the camera show certain children.

The movable camera is operated on alternate weeks by David Hollecker and Ray Maidment, both radio-television majors, according to Erling S. Jorgensen, director of radio-television studios.

The television equipment being used was installed by Archer S. Taylor, Director of Electronic Equipment Maintenance, and Mr. Sherpenseel. The equipment was loaned to the University by the Missoula TV Cable Company, who is also supplying the cable to bring the weekly telecasts from Roosevelt School to the TV center, Mr. Jorgensen said.

Demos Predict Successful Session

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Democratic leadership of Congress predicted today that the bulk of President Kennedy's heavy legislative program will be passed in the new session which starts Wednesday.

The House majority leader and speaker-to-be, Rep. John W. McCormack, D-Mass, told reporters after the President scored a "tremendous record last year."

"I have every confidence that Congress will enact into law the greater part of the President's program," he said.

McCormack was speaking of the domestic side of the administration's want list.

That program includes tax revision, medical care for the aged under Social Security, aid to education and other controversial proposals.

McCormack left in deep doubt, however, the outlook for the proposal for health care under the Social Security system.

When newsmen quizzed him on the point he said: "I have every confidence that if the bill comes out of the Ways and Means Committee it will be approved by the House."

He was asked: "What do you think of the chances of its coming out of the committee?"

McCormack paused a moment, then said in a tone of finality: "Well, thank you, gentlemen."

The session with Kennedy was billed as a preview of the State of the Union message he will deliver to Congress in person Thursday. Cabinet members were summoned to a later session to go over the message.

West to Continue Diplomatic Probe

BONN, Germany (AP) — Prime Minister Harold Macmillan and Chancellor Konrad Adenauer agreed Tuesday the West should pursue its diplomatic probe in Moscow to see if talks on Berlin were possible.

Agreement between the British and West German leaders was announced in a joint communique after daylong talks. It was reached despite Adenauer's comment Monday night that he could not see that the talks in Moscow were getting anywhere.

In their first meeting in nearly a year, the two reaffirmed a determination in common with their allies "to maintain the Western position in Berlin and to defend the freedom and viability of West Berlin."

Decision on Guinea Expected Soon

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — Indonesian Foreign Minister Subandrio indicated today that President Sukarno will decide the question of war or peace over Dutch-occupied West New Guinea "within a week or 10 days."

Subandrio told newsmen after a conference of Indonesia's top military policy-making body—the National Defense Council—that Sukarno "has come to the conclusion that at present there are still no signs that diplomatic moves can be of help in solving the West Irian West New Guinea problem."

Subandrio blamed the "vague attitude of the Dutch."

Sukarno heads the National Defense Council and presided over the meeting following a four-day speaking tour of the Celebes, where he escaped a grenade explosion in Makassar. He blamed the attempt on his life—the fourth in four years—on the Dutch.

"Within one week or 10 days," Subandrio said, "we will have arrived at a conclusion, and will have the certainty whether steps in the diplomatic field with the Dutch can be of help in solving the West Irian issue."

Molotov Mystery Still Continues

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — The whereabouts of Vyacheslav V. Molotov was a mystery Tuesday night.

Not even the Soviet Foreign Ministry seemed to know where he is.

The ministry announced Monday Molotov was resuming his post as permanent Soviet representative to the International Atomic Energy Agency in Vienna and probably left Moscow Saturday.

If he left Moscow Saturday, he should have arrived here Monday. Reporters and photographers meeting trains and planes for the last two days caught no trace of him, however. Austrian police said there was no chance he might have crossed into Austria without their knowledge.

Paths on the Grass

As students started school last week the snows came and melted. Many students found it much safer to walk on the snow covered grass than on the ice covered walks.

This week as students settled down to more serious studying they find once again that it is necessary to walk on the grass instead of the sidewalks.

As the snows came the plows and sweepers were contented with pushing the snow into banks on each side of the walks. The results are what you see on the sidewalks today. When the snow melted the water had no place to go and the puddles began to form. New snow made slush and the cold spell has made the walks all but impossible to walk on.

To clear the sidewalks now would be difficult but still not impossible. However this would take much time and money that the maintenance department can ill afford. There is, however, an alternative to letting the walks continue in their present state.

The sidewalks could be sanded. This has one bad aspect and that is the students would drag some of the sand into the buildings. How seriously can this be considered when the safety of the students and faculty has to be taken into consideration.

The Health Service has reported cases of students falling on the ice. In one such case the student had to stay in the infirmary for two days and have his back x-rayed. Yesterday a student was waiting to have his elbow x-rayed after falling on the ice. Other cases are of a less serious nature and these do not count the numerous cases that are not reported to the Health Service.

It is only January and it would be appreciated by all the persons on campus if they did not have to wait for spring before the walks are cleared.

New Session, Old Problems

Senators and representatives will start the second session of the 82nd Congress knowing full well what they want to do and leaving Pres. Kennedy with some doubts about his pet programs.

By the end of next month Pres. Kennedy will have given to Congress his State of the Union message, the budget and the economic messages. All three of these will deal with the $92,000,000,000 budget that Pres. Kennedy will ask for to defend the country, support our foreign affairs commitments, speed up our space program and on the domestic scene we can expect anything from help for the farmers to putting the same farmers in fallout shelters.

With the rise of world tensions most of the budget will be passed with only a few Republicans making political hay out of it. The important debates, as in the last session, will be over federal aid for the aged, federal aid for schools, and any proposals that might stem from Congressional investigations of drugs and especially the investigations into the Pentagon muzzling of officers.

Mainly because of added expense for defense the $92,000,000,000 budget will be about $3,000,000,000 above estimated spending for the current fiscal year. Pres. Kennedy is expected to present a balanced budget in an effort to meet opposition criticism that his administration is "fiscally irresponsible." For the current fiscal year the Federal revenue is only $82,100,000,000 and Pres. Kennedy will most likely predict increased tax receipts resulting from improvements in the national economy to balance the budget.

The major new proposal of Pres. Kennedy will be his program to cut tariffs in response to the challenge of the European Common Market. With the authority to cut the tariffs, he says, that he would be able to bargain away part of the Common Market's unified external tariff and thereby keep U.S. exports at a high level.

The protectionists argue that the president should be raising rather than lowering tariffs. This issue promises to generate the most intense controversy of the session and because local interests are often involved both partisan and conservative-liberal lines will be crossed.

To make it even more interesting the members of the House of Representatives and one-third of the Senate will be filling the pork barrels before they go home to face their constituents hoping to get re-elected.

Speech Request On U.N. Answered

To the Kaimin:

The following letter is our answer to the conditional acceptance of our invitation to speak, which appeared in the December 6 Kaimin.

We would be pleased to have you address the Young Americans for Freedom on the subject of the United Nations. This is an invitation and not a challenge, as indicated by the Kaimin's headline on your letter. However, we cannot meet all the conditions you have set for us.

We are happy to defer your speech until this quarter. We cannot, however, supply you with a copy of Mr. Montgomery's speech, since we have no copy of it. We had no intention, moreover, of constraining you to a refutation of Mr. Montgomery's remarks. We would merely like to hear your views on the U.N.

The question of the moderator will be handled exactly as it was for Mr. Montgomery. Since this is to be an open meeting of our group, our president will handle the introduction. You will be allowed to choose who asks the questions in the question-answer period, as Mr. Montgomery was. We assume that as a gentleman you will do this fairly.

Finally, we make one additional request. We would like to make a tape recording of your remarks and of the question-answer period, a copy of which will be made available to you if you wish. We would like to have tape recordings of all our future presentations, including yours, so as not to repeat our error of not having Mr. Montgomery's speech on record.

We hope these conditions will meet with your approval.

Law School Admission Exams Scheduled by Dean for Feb. 10

Persons interested in taking the law school entrance exams on Feb. 10 are urged to pick up application blanks at the law school at least three weeks in advance, according to Robert Sullivan, dean of the law school.

The tests consist of two sections, Sullivan explained, a three-hour morning section in legal aptitude and a two-hour afternoon section in general academic background. These tests are now required by 100 of the 130 law schools in the country. The results, determined at Princeton, will be sent to any law school which the student requests.

Booklets with information concerning the test are available with the applications, Sullivan said. Cost of the test is $10.

Carter Offered Position, Declines It

To the Kaimin:

I have just received an offer of a teaching job at Northern Illinois University at a yearly salary of $9,540. The increase over what Montana is paying me now comes within a few score dollars of equalling all the raises I have received at MSU for five years, put together. Yet I do not regret a single one of those five years; and I would gladly stay on here even if this institution never granted me an additional penny.

I do not expect considerations of this sort to move the MSU Administration, which is not given to sentimentalism. But it is my wish that the university community be informed that I have declined the offer from Northern Illinois.

In short, I would much prefer to stay here in Montana.

Operation of University Lanes Delayed by Contract Problems

The University Lanes were not in operation Monday as had been planned, Earl Martell, director of Student Activities Facilities, announced yesterday.

The lanes will not be in operation until at least Jan. 22, Martell said because contract difficulties tied up the regularly scheduled shipment the first week of January.

The original contract was made through the regional offices of the bowling concern, but when the contract reached the main office in Chicago, the firm held up shipment to inform the University Lanes a new contract could be signed through their office that would offer the Lanes a special school price. Financial Vice President Robert Panzer then called the Chicago office and made vocal commitment on the new contract.

The new offer provides for an over-all savings, Martell said, and also gives the University two options in addition to the direct purchase clause of the regional contract. The head office contract provides for the leasing of the machines on a reduced rate after the purchase price has been paid.

Under the leasing clause, the company would provide insurance and additional items the University would have to pay for if they took ownership of the machines. The second option provides for the installation of new machines after the present ones are paid for. The rate would be the same as will be paid on the alleys now enroute.

The rate required by the bowling concern for each line bowled will be 12 cents with a yearly minimum required. If the minimum is not acquired from the 12 cents a line the balance will be paid from University athletic funds.

Wyoming's Football Coach's Release Held Up by Board

LARAMIE, Wyo. (AP) — Bob Devaney, Nebraska football coach-elect, said he was surprised Monday when the University of Wyoming board of trustees put off action on his request to be released from his contract which has 4½ years to run.

Devaney left Laramie later Monday to visit the Nebraska campus at Lincoln and apparently to do some recruiting of Nebraska high school players. Jim Ross, an assistant, went with Devaney.

William (Tippy) Dye, Nebraska athletic director, was a bit stunned when he learned of the Wyoming trustees' action. Dye is attending the National Collegiate Athletic Association convention in Chicago.

The board deferred any release of Devaney's contract until its scheduled board meeting Feb. 2. An informal poll of members was taken by telegraph to see how board members felt about releasing Devaney after five successful years as Wyoming football coach.

Clifford P. Hansen, board president, said some trustees had strong objections to letting Devaney go.

Hansen added: "It appears that discussion concerning Devaney's release is of sufficient importance to require more information and discussion at a full board meeting Feb. 2."

One of the objectors, who asked not to be identified by name, said he was certain Devaney would get the release, but that some of the trustees wanted to make him fret for a while.

Several of the trustees indicated they were disgruntled at having Wyoming's third coach in succession jump long-term contracts to move to larger schools. Bowden Wyatt and Phil Dickens each received releases before going on to new jobs—Wyatt to Arkansas and Dickens to Indiana.

Nebraska announced Saturday it wanted Devaney as a successor to Bill Jennings, whose contract was not renewed. Devaney said he wanted to go to Nebraska where he feels his over-all future would be better.

Glenn Jacoby, Wyoming's athletic director was also in Chicago for the NCAA convention—traditionally the hunting ground for new coaches. Jacoby said he expected to talk with possible candidates at Chicago and hoped to present a recommendation to the board at the Feb. 2 meeting.

Three of Devaney's aides have been mentioned as prospective candidates—Lloyd Eaton, defensive line coach; Carl Selmer, offensive line coach and Mike Corgan, backfield coach.

Devaney has said Ross, his end coach, would definitely go to Nebraska and all the assistants had been invited to join him at Lincoln. Early Wyoming campus speculation on a possible successor to Devaney includes the names of Utah State's John Ralston, Idaho State's Italo J. Caccia and Carl Rollins, assistant at Brigham Young and a former Sheridan high school coach.

The board member who said he objected to immediate release for Devaney, said the board of trustees may try to get some kind of damage payment on Devaney's unfulfilled contract.

Devaney said before he left for Lincoln it was too early to make any statement on what action he might take. And he added, "Of course, we'll have to wait and see what happens."

And Dye commented, "Of course we'll just have to wait for official word from Wyoming."

Ticket Sales Show Ski Enthusiasts Whitefish Bound

Ski Weekend is going to be bigger than ever this year, according to Joe Reber, president of the Ski Club.

Within two hours of the opening of ticket sales for the three-day excursion to Big Mountain, more than a dozen students had signed to make the jaunt.

Reber said the numerous inquiries made by students about the trip, together with the many requests for permission slips to attend has prompted him to believe that more than the 100 who traveled to Whitefish last year will be going Jan. 12.

Activities scheduled include a dance and a torchlight parade. The total cost of the weekend will be $22. Ticket sales will be discontinued Thursday evening.

Arrangements have been made for Dr. and Mrs. Hansen and Mr. Solberg to act as chaperones.

Reber reports that ski conditions are excellent.

New Facilities of LA Building To Be Used for Education School

Bit by bit, piece by piece, the School of Education is moving to its new home. The education school will occupy both floors of the middle wing of the Liberal Arts Building, according to Dean Linus J. Carleton.

Only Dean Carleton and the school's administration offices are now in the new location, but the rest of the staff are expected to be moved within the next few weeks.

In addition to offices, the wing will house a demonstration classroom, education teaching curriculum laboratory, counseling and placement offices and education and research offices.

The demonstration classroom, because of its unique adjustable desks and blackboards can be used as a classroom for education students and also for observation of primary school classes. Dean Carleton said the classroom was designed to duplicate an elementary school classroom as closely as possible. Elementary classes from Missoula grade schools will be invited to occasionally send classes for education students to observe.

The School of Education and the School of Business Administration previously occupied the same building, the Business Administration Education Building, until the growth of the two schools forced one to move. The School of Business Administration will continue to be located in the old building.

MSU Orators Place in Meet

Six members of the MSU speech team participated in the Northwest Speech Tournament at Bozeman last weekend. MSU's Bill White placed first in oratory and Phillip Hamilton won second place in oral interpretation.

Kirk Buls and Gib Clark were finalists in extemporaneous speech. The debate team won three and lost three. No sweepstake points were tallied and no collective school honors were awarded in the 12-school contest.

Students Arrive for Leadership Schools

From Anchorage, Alaska, to Wautoma, Wis., state and federal government natural resource administrators are converging on Missoula for the first session of the 17th annual School for Administrative Leadership.

Held in the School of Forestry, the leadership course is offered in two sections, from Jan. 8 to Feb. 2, and from Feb. 5 to March 2, according to Arnold W. Bolle, chairman of the school.

The course is designed to assist the experienced junior and middle-level administrative officer in developing administrative skills and knowledge of human relations, Mr. Bolle said.

Mr. Bolle said that staff members for the school are drawn from various departments on campus.

There are seven integrated areas of study, Mr. Bolle said, and the various areas and their instructors are:

Psychology of personnel, E. A. Atkinson, professor of psychology; public relations, Edward Dugan, professor of journalism; administration, politics and government, Thomas Payne, professor of political science, and effective writing, Jacob Vinocur, assistant professor of English.

Speech and communication, Ralph Y. McGinnis, professor of speech; economics of conservation, Arnold W. Bolle, professor of forestry and community relations, Harold Tascher, professor of social administration.

Mr. Bolle said the school was not limited to administrators in the field of Natural Resources, but most of those enrolled are from that field.

Marching Group Schedules Trips

A busy schedule lies ahead of Angel Flight, the AFOTC-sponsored women's drill team.

The Flight will make trips to Great Falls on Jan. 27; Butte, Feb. 2; and to Helena on March 3 for high school basketball games.

Idaho University has invited the Flight to perform in Moscow at the Idaho State game on Feb. 16. A Flight at the Idaho University is in the process of being formed.
